STEWART, Andrew Jackson, president of the Australasian Mission from 1857 to 1858, was born Sept. 12, 1819, in Jackson township, Monroe Co., Ohio, a son of Philander Barrett Stewart and Sally Scott. He was baptized Feb. 18, 1844, in Van Buren County, Ohio, and with his wife, Eunice Peas Haws, whom he had married Jan. 1, 1844, moved to Nauvoo the following October. He came to Utah in 1850, arriving as captain of a company in Salt Lake City Sept. 16, 1850; was one of the first settlers of Payson, Utah, and did a great deal of surveying in Utah and Nevada. In 1855 he accompanied Orson Hyde to Carson Valley to survey that country and to establish the boundary line between Utah and California. In 1856 he was sent on a mission to Australia, but stopped in Carson two months, surveying the lands for settlers and helping Apostle Orson Hyde to organize the branches of the Church in Carson Valley. He crossed the Sierra Nevada Mountains with George S. Clark, of Pleasant Grove, Utah, took ship from San Francisco to Melbourne, Australia, and after his arrival there Dec. 12, 1856, he was sustained as president of the Australasian Mission, at a conference held at Sydney June 7, 1857. He returned home in November, 1859, and died Dec. 7, 1911, at Benjamin, Utah Co., Utah. LDS Biogr Encyc Vol 4 p 308
